A creative metamorphosis.

Carole infuses her pottery with passion for nature. Be it birds or plants, she finds joy in incorporating them into her work via sculpting, painting, or carving on a vessel.

Dabbling in experimentation, this avid gardener is a perfectionist when it comes to the creative process. "I like to carve leaves and use different textures on the outside of the pots. Succulents are fun plants and deserve pots that match their eccentricity. Air plants, which have no soil, get a raku fired container so the pot does not get wet. Her dreams of a clay art kaleidoscope, cause her to brush her glazes, often gifting each leaf with a different colour. The metallic look is exceptional for plants.

Hers has been an interesting journey, starting with quilting and stained glass, then venturing into pottery 11 years ago. Carole now sells her creations as a means of sharing her gift with others and especially enjoys mixing wheel throwing with hand building. Her creative genius, like her plants, will continue to flourish.
